

Walking from Oxford Rail Station to Campion Hall

1. When you come out of the rail station you will see opposite you, across the car park, a large bronze statue of a bull next to the Said Business School. Veer right and walk down the station approach. Almost immediately in front of you there is a pedestrian crossing – cross to the middle of the square (it is actually more of a triangle shape with you at the thin end).
2. Across Frideswide Square to the left, you will see the Royal Oxford Hotel. Take the road that runs along the right-hand side of the hotel (Park End Street), past the Staples store on your left.
3. Cross the canal (at the Duke's Cut pub). Straight on into New Road, past Nuffield College on your left and the Castle mound on your right.
4. Where the street bears sharp right, keep going straight forward into the pedestrian shopping area. Almost immediately on the right take St Ebbe's Street (between BHS and Goldsmiths).
5. Walk down St Ebbe's (St Ebbe's Church to your right) and past the back entrance to Pembroke College. Brewer Street is a very narrow street on your left (there is no sign at this end but if you see the Oxford Deaf Centre you have gone too far). There is a glass walkway at high level above Brewer Street – pass under this.
6. Campion Hall is about halfway down on the right (not the first green door you come to, but the double wooden door under the stone arch – see picture). Press the bell which is outside and then come into the lobby through the street door which should be open/unlocked (just push hard).

The walk from the railway station to Campion Hall takes about 10-minutes.
